From observations: "The snow was getting warm on my way up 4th of July couloir (pinwheels coming off lookers right wall started around 11:30) top half took a long time due to deep snow so I was suspicious of the pinch. Ski cut it during the descent (12:30p) and set off a wet slide (point release) that picked up quite a bit of steam as it came out the bottom. Big enough to injure/bury a skier." Photo: Anonymous

Advisory Region
Northern Madison
Longitude

-111.41W
Latitude
45.35N
Avalanche Details: Skier triggered avalanche in Beehive
Forecast link: GNFAC Avalanche Forecast for Fri Nov 25, 2022
Northern Madison, 2022-11-24