Cornices are growing large after a series of storms in the southern Mountains. These cornices make up the rim of Sunlight Basin in the southern Madison Range. Cornices are good indicators of which slopes are wind loaded. It's often best to avoid riding on or underneath slopes attached to large cornices. Photo: GNFAC

Advisory Region
Southern Madison

Forecast link: GNFAC Avalanche Forecast for Sun Feb 17, 2019
Southern Madison, 2019-02-16