From obs 5/15/22: "We saw a point release that mobilized a slab of new snow on an East facing slope off of mt fox in cooke city. The new snow had heated up considerably during the day on Sunday. There were some older crowns below a cornice to the north of mt fox (second photo) with slide debris that extended down the whole face (600ft). Likely slid during a storm within the last week." Photo: C. Chupik

Advisory Region
Cooke City
Longitude

-109.93W
Latitude
45.12N
Avalanche Details: Natural wind slabs and wet slide, Cooke and Blackmore 5/13-5/15
Cooke City, 2022-05-18