

Dust on Crust in Hyalite

Activity

Snowboarding

Got up early and cruised around on some different aspects on Mt Blackmore. Got some shooting cracks on the N side of the mountain mid slope, textured snow and snow drifts were widespread in the basin on N aspects.

Found great skiing in N facing trees on that side of the mountain lower down below the apron and such.

East face had some top loading, nothing I was concerned about below ridge lines, save for some fast sluffs!

Found some isolated pockets of surface hoar, nothing widespread.

All in all, a fun morning, be curious to see how this next one affects the stability picture.
