

Two wet slabs that looked to have released during the past 48 hours. The smaller slide on the left had a debris pile that was 6' deep. The larger slide on the right failed at the ground and took most of the snow in the chute with it. The large slide may have been triggered from smaller loose wet slide that was set off by a skier. Photo: A. Schauer

Advisory Region
Bridger Range
Longitude
-110.93W
Latitude

45.84N

Avalanche Details: Wet avalanche activity in the Bridgers

Forecast link: GNFAC Avalanche Forecast for Fri Mar 22, 2019GNFAC Avalanche Forecast for Sat Mar 23, 2019

Bridger Range, 2019-03-21